ANGEL GOODRICH NABI ALUM AND WNBA TULSA SHOCK TO BE HONORED AT MERCURY GAME

The NABI Foundation, known for organizing high profile sporting events for Native American athletes will be honoring one of their own this Friday night as the Phoenix Mercury take on the Tulsa Shock.

Angel Goodrich and her team took the NABI Championship in 2008. Angel went on to play for Kansas and was recently drafted into the WNBA this year.

"To see her play at NABI and now watch her compete at the highest level is inspirational, not only to the mission of the NABI Foundation, but to all our young Native American athletes inspiring to reach the same level" says GinaMarie Scarpa NABI Co-founder & CEO.

Angel Goodrich will be awarded the "NABI Phil Homeratha Leadership Award". The award is presented every year during the NABI Championship games to an outstanding individual who demonstrates leadership for the advancement of Native American athletes, but due to Angel's WNBA game schedule she was not available to receive the award at this summer's NABI games.

On hand to present her award at the Mercury game half-time will be NABI Foundation Co-founder and Phoenix Suns very own Mark West, NABI Foundation CEO GinaMarie Scarpa and Chairman Louis Manuel of the Ak-Chin Indian Community.
